

Redline

2001

The Redline concept came out as the visual comment to the article "Architecture as a Habit" (Kultūros barai, 2002/12). The Redline principle is traditional tool in town planning, used for street space formation. In a way I found that space formation might be seen as a discipline "to bring things in order" or to analyze this kind of architecture as a habit.

Redline. Historical image of Laukininkai st. in Klaipėda, XX c.
© Unknown author, ~ 1930

Redline. Image of garage enclave in suburbia of Klaipėda.
© Vario burnos, ~ 1996

Redline. Children ("Lenin's grandchildren") in Kindergarten.
© Unknown author, ~ 1979